[???] Oliver Persehouse b c1555; m ----------; (and had chn: Elizabeth m 13 Nov 1599 Sedgley: Francis Gibbons c1569-.... QV); (of Turlshill in Sedgley, Staffs)

"John Persehouse shews a Deed of Manumission dated 31 Henry VIII (1541-2) by which all those lands late of Richard Persehouse, his father, called Flaxalls were enfranchised to him, John Persehouse, saving to the Lord of the Manor the free service and rents, as the other Tenants from ancient times were accustomed, and at the annual rent of 41s 8d. The same John Persehouse also claims by Indenture dated 28 Henry VIII (1536-7) a pasture in Sedgley called Poole Ridding for 30 years by the rent of 30s."

It was John of Flaxalls' younger son Thomas Persehouse (died 1575) who married Katherine Turhill, dau. of Robert Turhill, and inherited this property, though whether this was on the site of the later Turls Hill House or not, I couldn't say. Thomas and Katherine had two sons, Oliver and John.

Oliver (died 1623) inherited the Turls Hill property, followed by his son Edward. Edward Persehouse married Eleanor, daughter of Richard Bradley of the Wood, Baggeridge, in 1603. Both Edward and Eleanor died in 1640, leaving two sons William and John.

William married Judith Gibbons of Ettingshall and they inherited Turls Hill. On William's death, however, it was apparently inherited by his nephew Edward (son of William's deceased brother John, who had married his kinswoman Elizabeth, dau. of Richard and Jane Persehouse/Parkshouse/Parkes - Dud Dudley / Darby family and all that - of Holly Hill, Ettingshall). Just to cement the family bond even further, this Edward Persehouse married another relative, Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Persehouse of Persehouse Hall, in 1654. 'Turle Hill House' was then assessed for tax on four hearths.

Darby, Abraham (1678–1717), iron founder, copper smelter, and brass manufacturer, was born on 14 April 1678 at Old Farm Lodge, Wrens Nest, near Dudley, Worcestershire, the older child and only son of John Darby (d. 1725), farmer and nailer, and his wife, Ann, née Baylies. Nothing is known of Darby's early life before his apprenticeship to the Quaker Jonathan Freeth, malt-mill maker of Birmingham. Just out of his apprenticeship, on 18 September 1699, Darby married Mary Sargeant (1678–1718), the daughter of a linen yarn bleacher. They had ten children, four surviving into adulthood: Abraham Darby, Mary (who married Richard Ford, a partner in the iron foundry at Coalbrookdale), Edmund (1712–1757), and Ann.

From Sedgley Manor Court documents:

Vol.8 P.253 Admon. of estate of William Parkshouse of Tyrlshill, 19 Nov. 1661 - Letters of Admon. granted to Judith Parkshouse, widow & relict. Inventory dated 25 Mar. 1658, appraised by Thomas Gibbons & Robert Astley. Amount £63 14s 0d.

(This William was son of Edward & Eleanor Pershouse of Turls Hill. One of the items listed in the inventory of effects is a debt of £5 10s owed to him by William Haughton, who Satima Neist mentions in her contribution to this thread. William Persehouse married Judith Gibbons. There is apparently a will of 1684 for Judith, at Lichfield JRO. According to Brook Robinson, this may have been the 'widow Pearshouse' assessed for tax on two hearths in 1673.)

Vol.12 P.1 Admon. of estate of Edward Persehouse of Tirleshill, 3 Nov. 1691 - Letters of Admon. granted to Elizabeth, widow & relict. Inventory dated 21 May 1690, appraised by Richard Persehouse, William Harper, Elizabeth Persehouse & Joane Willmore. Amount £42 16s 7d.

(This Edward was nephew to the above William, who inherited Turls Hill on his uncle's death [1658], according to Brook Robinson. This later Admon. shows this branch of the Persehouse family could have retained the Turls Hill property until Edward's death in 1690, and possibly beyond. His widow Elizabeth [nee Persehouse] was a daughter of Richard and Jane Persehouse [nee Dudley/Sutton] and therefore a sister of Margaret Darby, who also descended from Thomas and Katherine [nee Turhill]. I do not have a burial date for Elizabeth. The Richard Persehouse who appraised Edward's effects, could have been a son.)
